

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

CHICOPEE, MASS.Stables, Care of—Manure, Care and Disposal of. (Reg. Bd. of H., Mar. 4, 1913.)

Every owner, lessee, or occupant of any stable or place where horses or cattle or other animals shall collect, shall at all times keep or cause to be kept such stables and places in a cleanly condition satisfactory to the board of health.

All manure shall be kept in a proper and suitable pit or receptacle for the purpose. The accumulation and storage of manure outside such pit or receptacle is prohibited.

No manure shall be removed or carried through any street unless it is loaded in such a manner as to prevent its being scattered or dropped while being carried away.

No manure shall be allowed to accumulate at any stable for a longer period than one week without permission from the board of health.

All stables and manure heaps shall be sprinkled with some disinfectant as often as the board of health believes necessary, to prevent the breeding of flies as far as possible, as it has been established that one of the most dreaded diseases, infantile paralysis, is transmitted through the medium of the stable fly.

Any person or persons who shall fail, neglect, or refuse to comply with, or who shall violate any of the provisions of the board of health regulations relative to stables, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $20, and the agent of the board of health shall make all complaints.